In legal terms, we are generally the “data controller” under European data protection laws of the personal information described in this privacy notice, since we determine the means and/or purposes of the data processing we perform. This privacy notice does not apply to the personal information we process as a “data processor” on behalf of our customers. In those situations, the customer that we provide services to and with whom we have entered into a data processing agreement is the “data controller” responsible for your personal information, and we merely process your information on their behalf in accordance with your instructions. You can withdraw your consent at any time. Click here to learn more.

- If disclosure is required to comply with a subpoena, warrant, court order, or rules of the court relating to the production of records
- If it was produced by an individual in the course of their employment, business, or profession and the collection is consistent with the purposes for which the information was produced

Disclosures of personal Information.

- Sales of personal information. The concept of a "sale" under CCPA is different from what has traditionally been considered a "sale", e.g., selling a customer list for money. Under CCPA, a "sale" potentially includes other uses or disclosures of personal information to third parties outside Zulily in a commercial context (unless an exception to "sale" as provided by CCPA exists). Because the concept of "sale" is so broad under CCPA, VideoOnPaper may be deemed to "sell" the following categories of personal information: identifiers; demographic data; purchase history, and payment information; internet or other electronic network activity information; geolocation data; audio, electronic, visual, or similar information; your preferences and inferences about your interests; and individual records.

- Shares of personal information. VideoOnPaper shares information with social media platforms and its advertising partners in connection with its Interest-Based Advertising activities. These activities are considered a "share" of personal information under CCPA.

- Disclosures for business purposes. Please note that VideoOnPaper may share your personal information with vendors that help us fulfill your transactions and provide other services to us. Examples of these vendors include payment processors, fraud prevention services, and shippers. We do not treat these disclosures as sales. VideoOnPaper may disclose the following personal information to our vendors: identifiers; demographic data; purchase history, and payment information; internet or other electronic network activity information; geolocation data; audio, electronic, visual, or similar information; professional or employment-related information; your preferences and inferences about your interests; and individual records.

The terms of the financial incentive will be presented to you at the time you sign up. Generally, we do not assign monetary or other value to personal information. However, California law requires that we assign such value in the context of financial incentives. In such context, the value of the personal information is equal to the cost of providing the financial incentive we have offered you.
